— How the Key Ingredients Work

DHEA-F brings together four time-honored ingredients to help your body maintain healthy hormone balance, steady energy, and overall well-being. Each ingredient plays its own supporting role, working together to help you feel more like yourself every day.

DHEA — DHEA is one of the most abundant hormones your body naturally makes, produced mainly by the adrenal glands. Levels tend to drop as we age, and research shows supplementing with DHEA may help support mood, energy, a sense of well-being, and healthy hormone levels in both women and men as they get older.

Wild Yam — Wild yam root has been used for centuries as a traditional botanical ally for women's health. It contains naturally occurring plant compounds that have been studied for their antioxidant activity, and a small clinical trial found it helped raise healthy HDL cholesterol levels in older adults. It also supports the body's natural defenses against everyday oxidative stress.

Sarsaparilla — Sarsaparilla root, drawn from the climbing Smilax plant found across tropical and temperate regions worldwide, has a long history of traditional use for joint comfort and overall vitality. Its natural plant compounds have been studied in the lab for antioxidant and immune-supporting activity, and traditional herbalists across the Americas and Asia have relied on it for centuries to support healthy joints and general wellness.

Chaste Tree — Chaste tree berry, also known as vitex or chasteberry, is a well-researched botanical for women's hormonal health. It works through the body's own hormonal signaling pathways to help support a healthy balance between estrogen and progesterone. Clinical trials have documented its role in supporting regular cycles, a positive mood, and overall hormonal comfort — especially during times of hormonal change.
